* Until 2013, the response choices were “quite good” and “quite bad.”

General notes:

- This comparative analysis presents the distribution of responses from the total sample (with the exception of questions that were presented only to Jews or only to Arabs, and of several questions in which only the responses of Jews or of Arabs are shown), including the category “don't know.”
- The wording of the questions and the response categories is presented as it appears in the Democracy Index 2021 survey. Where differences exist in wording or categories between this year's Index and those of previous years, or where there are categories that did not appear in a given year, this is explained in notes provided below the relevant table.
- “N/A” is used to mark a question or category that was not presented to the respondents in a given year; for instance, in cases where four response choices were offered in certain years, and five in others.
