▮▮ We are all here to stay—Haredim and secular Jews, Orthodox Jews and Arabs. Now, if we truly want to deal with the significance of the 'new Israeli order,' then we must bravely face the issue... we must not allow [it] to cajole us into secretarianism and separation. We must not give up on the concept of 'Israeliness'; we should rather open up its gates and expand its language. ▮▮

President Reuven (Ruvi) Rivlin

Chairman, IDI International Advisory Council

Prof. Gerhard Casper is President of the American Academy in Berlin. He is also President Emeritus of Stanford University and is a Senior Fellow at both the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies (FSI Stanford) and the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research (SIEPR). In addition, he is Peter and Helen Bing Professor, Emeritus; Professor of Law, Emeritus, and Professor of Political Science (by courtesy), Emeritus.

After an initial teaching position at the University of California at Berkeley, Prof. Casper was recruited two years later by the University of Chicago, where he spent 26 years. He served as Dean of the Law School and in 1989 became Provost of the University, a post he held until he accepted the presidency of Stanford University in 1992. He has written and taught primarily in the fields of constitutional law, constitutional history, comparative law, and jurisprudence. His most recent book, The Winds of Freedom—Addressing Challenges to the University, was published by Yale University Press in February 2014.

Prof. Casper is an emeritus member of the Council of the American Law Institute, a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a Fellow of the American Philosophical Society, and a member of the Order Pour le Mérite for the Sciences and Arts. He has been the Chairman of the Israel Democracy Institute's International Advisory Council since September 2014.

The Honorable George P. Shultz

Chairman Emeritus, IDI International Advisory Council

A native of New York, The Honorable George P. Shultz graduated from Princeton University in 1942. After serving in the Marine Corps (1942–1945), he earned a PhD in industrial economics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). Mr. Shultz taught at MIT and The University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, where he became Dean in 1962.

Mr. Shultz was appointed US Secretary of Labor in 1969, Director of the Office of Management and Budget in 1970, and Secretary of the Treasury in 1972. From 1974 to 1982, he was President of Bechtel Group, Inc. He served as Chairman of the President’s Economic Policy Advisory Board (1981–1982) and as Secretary of State (1982–1989).

Currently, Mr. Shultz is Honorary Chairman of the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research and of the Israel Democracy Institute’s International Advisory Council. He is also Chair of the Precourt Institute Energy Advisory Council at Stanford University, Chair of the MIT Energy Initiative External Advisory Board, and Chair of the Hoover Institution’s Shultz-Stephenson Task Force on Energy Policy. Since 1989, he has been a Distinguished Fellow at the Hoover Institution, Stanford University.

Justice Rosalie Silberman Abella

Justice Rosalie Silberman Abella practiced civil and criminal litigation until her appointment to the Ontario Family Court in 1976. She subsequently chaired the Ontario Law Reform Commission and the Ontario Labour Relations Board, was the sole Commissioner and author of the 1984 Royal Commission on Equality in Employment, was the Boulton Visiting Professor at McGill Law School for five years¹ and served as a judge on the Ontario Court of Appeal for 12 years.

Justice Silberman Abella is a specially elected Fellow of the Royal Society of Canada and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, as well as a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music in classical piano. She was a judge of the Giller Literary Prize, has written extensively on a wide variety of legal topics, and has 35 honorary degrees. In 2004, she became the first Jewish woman appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Justice Silberman Abella is married to Canadian historian Irving Abella and they have two sons, both lawyers.

Justice (Emerita) Dorit Beinisch

Justice Dorit Beinisch (née Werba) is the President (Emerita) of the Israeli Supreme Court. Born in Tel-Aviv, she earned an LL.B. and an LL.M. (summa cum laude), both from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Justice Beinisch began her distinguished public service career in 1967, when she began 28 years of service in the Ministry of Justice, holding senior positions to which women had not been appointed before in Israel. She worked as a Senior Attorney in the Criminal Law Department and was nominated to be the director of the Department of Constitutional and Administrative Law in 1975. She became Deputy State Attorney in 1982 and served as State Attorney of Israel from 1989 through 1995. In December 1995, she was appointed as a Justice of the Supreme Court of Israel. In September 2006, she was appointed President of the Supreme Court, becoming the first woman in Israel to hold this position. She retired in 2012.

President Beinisch's public service career has been characterized by striving for non-discriminatory law enforcement, leading an uncompromising war on corruption, and implementing constitutional human rights and legal norms based on Israeli and international law. She has devoted special attention to rooting out government corruption and to ensuring that government institutions, especially the security forces and the police, adhere to the rule of law and protect human rights. Dorit Beinisch is married to Yeheskell Beinisch, a prominent lawyer, and has two daughters and four grandchildren.

Prof. Vernon Bogdanor

Vernon Bogdanor CBE is Professor of Government at King's College, London, and was formerly Professor of Government at Oxford University. His main interests lie in the workings of democratic government, British politics, the politics of Western Europe, and the politics of the European Union.

Prof. Bogdanor is a Fellow of the British Academy, Honorary Fellow of the Institute for Advanced Legal Studies, and a Fellow of the Academy of the Social Sciences. He has been an adviser to a number of governments, including those of the Czech Republic, Hungary, Kosovo, and Slovakia. His books on British politics include The People and the Party System, Multi-Party Politics and the Constitution, Power and the People, Devolution in the United Kingdom, The New British Constitution, and The Coalition and the Constitution.

Prof. Bogdanor's edited volumes include The British Constitution in the 20th Century, Joined-Up Government, and From the New Jerusalem to New Labour. He is currently writing a multi-volume history of British politics in the 20th century. He is a frequent contributor to the press and the media, and regularly appears on BBC and ITN election programs.

In 2008, he was awarded the Sir Isaiah Berlin Award for Lifetime Contribution to Political Studies by the Political Studies Association. In 2009 he was made a Chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur by President Sarkozy. He has an honorary DLitt from Kent and is an Honorary Bencher of the Middle Temple.

Prof. Ronald J. Daniels

Prof. Ronald J. Daniels is the 14th President of Johns Hopkins University, America's first research university. Since he took office in 2009, the university has launched a series of multi-disciplinary initiatives aimed at addressing some of society's most vexing issues, bolstered the efforts of faculty, staff and students to translate discoveries into novel technologies, invested heavily in student access, and extended its rich community partnerships.

A law and economics scholar, Prof. Daniels is the author or editor of seven books and dozens of scholarly articles. Before coming to Johns Hopkins, he was Provost and Professor of Law at the University of Pennsylvania and Dean and James M. Tory Professor of Law of the Faculty of Law at the University of Toronto.

Justice (Emerita) Dalia Dorner

Supreme Court Justice (Emerita) Dalia Dorner was born in 1934 in Turkey and immigrated to Israel in 1944. She studied law at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and earned a Master's degree in Jurisprudence in 1958. She then enlisted in the IDF, where she served in a number of judicial capacities including judge on the IDF Court of Appeals, and attained the rank of colonel. Between 1979 and 1994, Justice Dorner served as a District Court Judge, first in Be'er Sheva and then in Jerusalem. In 1994, she was appointed to Israel's Supreme Court, where she served until her retirement in 2004.

Justice Dorner has been an advisor to Masters and Doctoral candidates at Haifa University and was a Visiting Lecturer at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. She is the current President of the Israeli Press Council. Justice Dorner has published extensively on the subject of pretrial detention, affirmative action and women's equality, proportionality, constitutional protection of human dignity, medical ethics, and child and parental rights.

An honorary member of the American Law Institute, Justice Dorner holds a Doctorate (Honoris Causa) from the Weizmann Institute of Science and from the Ben-Gurion University of the Negev.

Prof. Moshe Halbertal

Prof. Moshe Halbertal is the Gruss Professor at NYU Law School, the John and Golda Cohen Professor of Jewish Thought and Philosophy at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, a Professor of Law at IDC Herzliya, and a member of Israel's National Academy for Sciences and the Humanities.

Prof. Robert H. Mnookin

Prof. Robert H. Mnookin is the Samuel Williston Professor of Law at Harvard Law School, Chair of the Program on Negotiation at Harvard Law School, and the Director of the Harvard Negotiation Research Project. A leading scholar in the field of conflict resolution, Prof. Mnookin has applied his interdisciplinary approach to negotiation and conflict resolution to a remarkable range of problems, both public and private.

A renowned teacher and lecturer, Prof. Mnookin has taught numerous workshops for corporations, governmental agencies, and law firms throughout the world, and trained many executives and professionals in negotiation and mediation skills. On behalf of the World Intellectual Property Organization, he designed and has taught annual workshops for intellectual property professionals. Prof. Mnookin has served as a consultant to governments, international agencies, major corporations, and law firms. As a neutral arbitrator or mediator, he has resolved numerous complex commercial disputes.

Prof. Mnookin has written or edited 10 books and numerous scholarly articles. In his most recent book, Bargaining with the Devil: When to Negotiate, When to Fight, he explores the challenge of making such critical decisions. Using eight conflicts drawn from history and his own professional experience, he offers a framework that applies equally to international conflicts and everyday life.

Professor Gabriela Shalev

Prof. Gabriela Shalev is a senior faculty member at Ono Academic College and the Chair of the Israel Council for Higher Education's Committee for Appointment of Professors in Law, Business Management, and Social Science. She was Israel's Ambassador to the United Nations (2008–2010) and was the first woman to hold that position.

Prof. Shalev is a world expert on contract law and procurement contracts, a member of the International Academy of Comparative Law, and the author of 11 books and over 100 articles on these subjects. Until 2002, she was a Professor of Law at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, and taught contract law and comparative law in North America, Europe, and Canada. For many years, she was the Chief Editor of the Israeli Supreme Court judgments and an editor of the Hebrew Encyclopedia. Prof. Shalev was Acting Chairman of the Israel Broadcasting Authority and was a member of the Jewish Agency's Board of Governors, the Tribunal for Standard Form Contracts, the Committee for Codification of Civil Law, and the Presidency of the Movement for Quality Government. She is on the Board of Directors of Bank Leumi Le-Israel Ltd and was on the Board of Directors of Teva Pharmaceuticals, Osem Investments, and Delek Ltd.
