The Israeli Democracy Index

Highlights

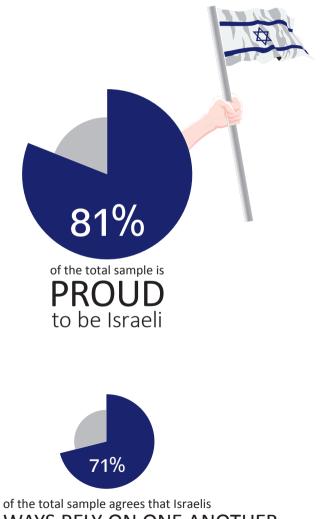

Tamar Hermann Ella Heller | Chanan Cohen | Dana Bublil | Fadi Omar

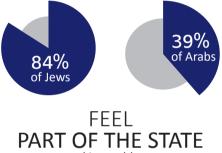

How's it Going?

What Israelis feel about the Situation

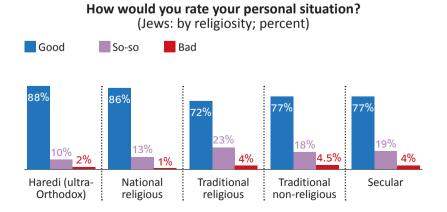

The 2016 Israeli Democracy Index examines multiple aspects of Israel's democracy, including its structure, effectiveness, and values. The Index offers a multifaceted. up-to-date portrait of Israeli public opinion, identifying ongoing trends as well as new phenomena in the political and social arenas.

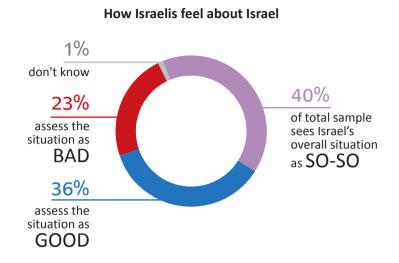

CAN ALWAYS RELY ON ONE ANOTHER in times of trouble

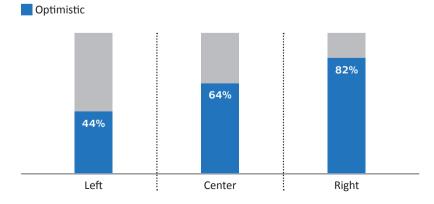

and its problems

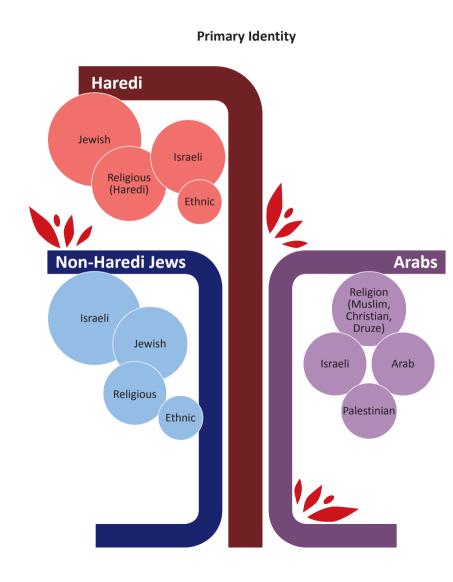

Level of optimism based on political orientation

While the majority is optimistic about the country's future, a breakdown by political camp (Jews) shows deep divisions:

Multiple Identities

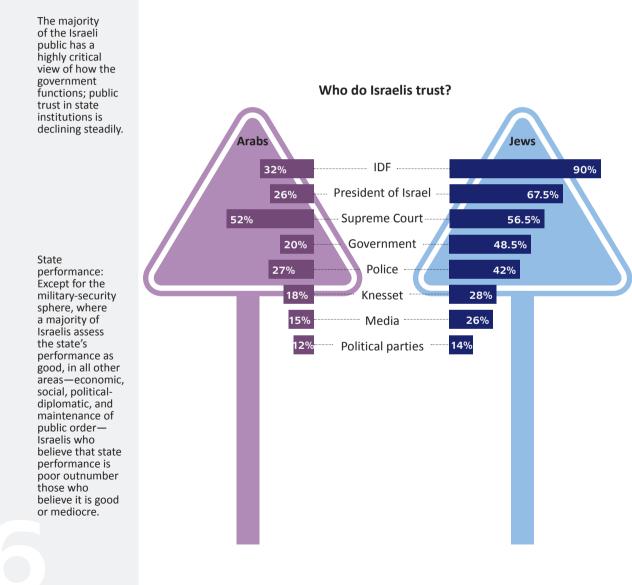

How Israelis define themselves

Fascinating and complex, Israeli identity is comprised of several primary identities that coexist simultaneously. To a large extent, the relative strength of these components in each sector corresponds with national, religious, and political affiliations.

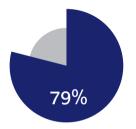

Warning: Hazard Ahead

How Israelis view their state institutions of the total sample feels that politicians don't work hard and ARE NOT DOING A GOOD JOB of the total sample holds that politicians look out FOR THEIR OWN INTERESTS before those of the public of the total sample does not believe that the public can influence GOVERNMENT POLICY

Arab-Israeli Relations

Interestingly, the findings of the 2016 Survey suggest that the primary cause for the rift between the Jewish majority and Arab minority is not racism but rather the debate over the character of the state. Indeed. while Jewish Israelis call for bolstering the state's Jewish character. the Arab minority seeks to reinforce the civic dimension of the state. In other areas. the Jewish majority supports equality for the Arab minority, and is even prepared to draw nearer on a personal and societal level.

72% 56%

of Jews

feel that crucial decisions on issues of peace and security should be made BY A JEWISH MAJORITY hold that Arab citizens of Israel DO NOT POSE A SECURITY RISK to the state

57% feel the same about crucial decisions on governance, economy, and society

Half of all Jews and more than two-thirds of Arabs feel that the greatest tension in Israeli society is between Arabs and Jews

of lews

ARE OPPOSED TO

having Arab parties in the coalition and to appointing Arab ministers to the Cabinet

of Arabs

SUPPORT

Arab parties joining the government, including the appointment of Arab ministers

52.5% 77% of Jews

feel that those who are unwilling to declare that Israel is the nation-state of the Jewish people SHOULD BE STRIPPED OF THEIR RIGHT TO VOTE

of Arabs

DO NOT AGREE that Israel should be defined as "THE STATE OF THE JEWISH PEOPLE"

agree that ARAB CITIZENS OF ISRAEL are discriminated against compared with Jewish citizens

of Arabs

think that Arab citizens of Israel ARE DISCRIMINATED AGAINST compared with Jewish citizens

Internal Disagreements

What is the greatest internal existential threat to Israel?

26% 26%

the STRONG DISAGREEMENTS among various segments of Israeli society of lews: of Arabs:

ISRAEL'S CONTROL OF THE WEST BANK (Judea and Samaria)

23% 23% of Jews: of Arabs:

Social/economic inequality

The demand to make Israel more lewish

Percentage of Jews who agree that human rights organizations such as ACRI and B'Tselem harm the state

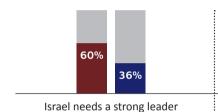

The Ultra-Orthodox

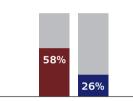

and Israeli society

Haredi Jews

Non-Haredi Jews

Haredi attitudes toward democracy differ from that of the non-Haredi Jewish public

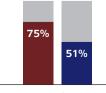

Jewish citizens of Israel should have greater rights than non-Jewish citizens

Contrary to popular opinion, the Haredim are not an isolated enclave, estranged from the "Israeli project"; most are proud to be Israeli. see themselves as part of the state and its problems. and are optimistic about its future.

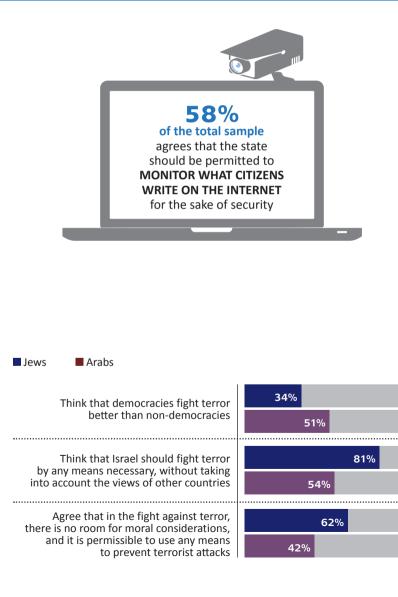

The ultra-Orthodox self-identify clearly on the Right of the political spectrum

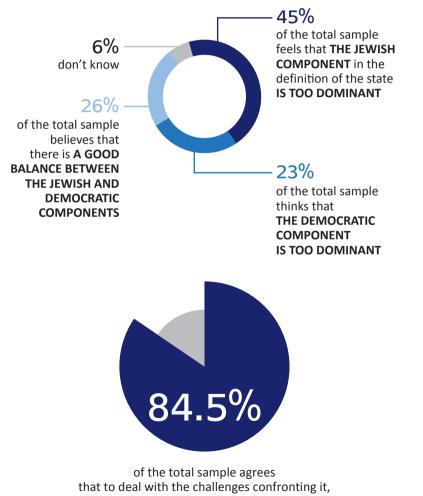

Israelis Choose

security over democracy in the war on terror

Identity Crisis

Jewish OR democratic?

ISRAEL MUST MAINTAIN ITS DEMOCRATIC CHARACTER

Measuring Up?

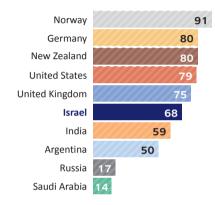

Israel in comparison to the world

Israel's position in international rankings of quality and effectiveness of government is not bad. However, there is much room for improvement in specific areas.

Freedom of the press index

0 no freedom | 100 full freedom

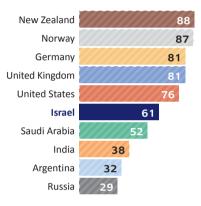

Source: Freedom House

Perception of corruption index

0 high degree of corruption | 100 absence of corruption

Source: Transparency International

Civil liberties index

0 civil liberties not respected | 10 civil liberties fully respected

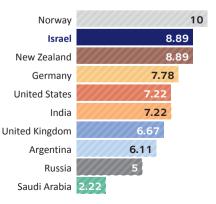

Source: Economist Intelligence Unit

Political participation index

0 low participation | 10 high participation

Source: Economist Intelligence Unit

Human development index

 ${\bf 0}$ low level of development $\mid {\bf 1}$ high level of development

Source: UNDP

Norway	0.944
Germany	0.916
United States	0.915
New Zealand	0.913
United Kingdom	0.907
Israel	0.894
Saudi Arabia	0.837
Argentina	0.836
Russia	0.798
India	0.609

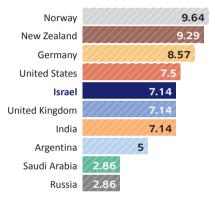

Political risk index

0 high risk | 100 low risk

Functioning of government index

0 lack of democratic functioning |10 full democratic functioning

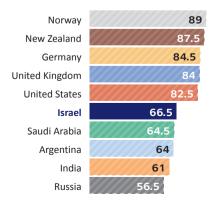

Source: Economist Intelligence Unit

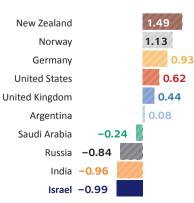

Political stability and absence of violence/terrorism index

-2.5 low stability | +2.5 high stability

Source: The World Bank

Source: International Country Risk Guide

The Israeli Democracy Index, a project of the Israel Democracy Institute's Guttman Center for Public Opinion and Policy Research, offers an annual assessment of the quality of Israeli democracy. For each of the last fourteen years, a comprehensive survey of a representative sample of the Israeli population has been carried out for this purpose. This year's survey was conducted in May and was comprised of 1,531 respondents.

The mission of the Israeli Democracy Index is to document trends in Israeli society as they relate to crucial issues associated with the perpetuation of democratic values. In furtherance of this goal, the Index gauges the functioning of government institutions and representatives.

Analysis of the survey's results is meant to enrich the discussion of relevant public policy issues in Israel as well as create a comprehensive database that can serve to deepen the public discourse on the state of Israel's democracy.

